MAY FILE EXPLANATIONS

Civil Service Commission to Hear All Facts

Alva Shasteen and Carl Radcliff, night police officers, were reinstated to their positions Tuesday night by Safety Director Charles Caskey, without pay for the time of their suspensions.

The decision of the safety director on the hearing held last Friday was announced about 5:15 p. m. Tuesday after a conference with Carl C. Leist, solicitor. Mr. Caskey met with the city solicitor to iron out legal points in the case.

Appeal Planned

Attorneys for the officers immediately announced the case would be taken before the Civil Service commission comprised of James A. McLaughlin, James Wickenseimer and Harry Bartholomew. They have ten days to appeal the case to the commission. The commission hears the case within 30 days.

"We intend to fight this case right on through," Attorney Joseph Adkins, Jr. said. "There is no proof the officers have done anything that has not been done by other members of the force and has not been a common practice in the department."

Both of the officers reported for duty Tuesday night.

Suspended by Chief

The suspension orders were issued to the officers by Police Chief William McCrady on March

TENSION GROWS BETWEEN GREAT BRITAIN, IL DUCE

London Seeks to Prevent Publication of Taunting Notes and Cartoons

ITALIANS FACING CRISIS

"Army" in Spain Beaten, News Reports Disclose

LONDON, March 24 — (UP) — Such dangerous tension has arisen in Italian-British relations that authorities sought today to restrain British newspapers and news agencies from publishing articles and cartoons likely to incite further the anger of Premier Benito Mussolini.

The situation was peculiar. No urgent problem had arisen between the Italian and British governments. The tension was caused by a series of taunting ar reproachful statements about Italy by newspapers and private persons, notably clergymen.

No Demonstration "Yet"

Mussolini was so enraged that authoritative word from Rome today compared the situation to that in 1935, when many feared war over the Ethiopian crisis. The Rome dispatches added significantly that there had been no anti-British demonstration "yet".

A solid background for the situation was seen in a gathering budget of worries for Mussolini. Spanish loyalists claimed a rout of the Italian "army" in Spain, which would be calculated to dim the prestige of the "8,000,000 bayonets" of which Mussolini is so proud. Austria, long Italy's satellite, was showing signs of restiveness.

Mussolini was said to be most anxious also because of the unyielding attitude of Nazi Germany — Italy's present friend and World War enemy — toward the papal encyclical protesting against church conditions in Germany.

CHILD'S SLAYER HANGS HIMSELF IN PRISON CELL

Guards found him hanging in his cell at Dolores prison in Buenos Aires province when they changed shifts this morning.

He had tied one end of his cloth sash, worn in place of a belt, to his cell bars and the other around his neck.

Gancedo, and itinerant ranch worker, was held for trial for murdering the child he confessed luring from its playground in front of the Iraola ranch near here.

Because of the social and political prominence of the Iraolo family and the fact it was the first kidnaping of its kind in Argentina, the case attracted international attention.

When found, the child's body was nude and it bore several bruises. The boy was kidnaped February 25 and his body discovered in a corn field near the ranch four days later.

40 Escape in Lifeboats As Blast Wrecks Ship

HONOLULU, T. H., March 24.—(UP)—A radio message from the Panamanian line freighter, Fijian, today said there was a terrific explosion in the forward hold of the vessel and that Capt. Alfred Parker and the crew of 40 were forced to abandon ship and take to the lifeboats.

The message was intercepted by the U. S. coast guard cutter Shoshone in mid-Pacific. It said some of the members of the crew were injured but gave no details.

Position of the Fijian was given as five miles from Arutura island, about 1,000 miles from the Shoshone. It was assumed the Fijian crew would head for the island in the lifeboats.

Most of the Fijian crew were reported to be orientals. The freighter left San Francisco March 2 for the South Sea islands and Melbourne. It carried no passengers. It was one of the boats that stood by the British motorship Silverlarch during its recent fire.

Early reports indicated the Fijian was doomed.

The Fijian is 338 feet long and is 2109 net tons displacement. It was built in 1919 and originally was known as the Silver Oak. It operates from the Pacific coast through the agents, the Flood Brothers, of San Francisco.

LANSING, Mich., March 24— (UP)—John L. Lewis and Walter P. Chrysler sat down at the same table today in an attempt to settle a strike that has closed nine Chrysler Corp. plants and thrown 60,000 persons out of work.

Gov. Frank Murphy brought the chairman of the Committee for Industrial Organization and the head of Chrysler Corp. together in his office while 6,000 men held all of the corporation's Detroit plants in defiance of an order for their arrest. The meeting began shortly after 11 a. m.

Lewis, weary after a fast train trip from Washington, had no comment as he walked into the same room where a few weeks ago leaders of the United Automobile Workers and executives of General Motors reached a truce in another far-flung automobile strike.

Chrysler was accompanied by K. T. Keller, president of the Corporation; B. E. Hutchinson, chairman of the finance committee; and Nicholas Kelly and H. H. Ramsey, attorneys.

E-LESS AUTHOR CANNOT ATTACH NAME TO NOVEL

LOS ANGELES, March 24 — (UP) — A 50,100-word "e-less" novel made its bow today — and promptly placed its author in a tight predicament.

Gray-bearded Author Ernest Vincent Wright, 66, World War musician and a graduate of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, tied down the "e" bar of his typewriter the five months the novel took him.

He did it after reading that "e" appears five times more often than any other letter.

Wright had to avoid pronouns such as "she," "he" and "them". The problem of past tense verbs such as "wanted" made him fudge a bit; his characters had to "want" instead.

A dramatic climax, some 16,000 "e-less" words down in the tale reads as follows:

"Now, an approach to a young girl' 'big day' is not always just as that girl might wish. Small things bob up which at first look actually disastrous for a joyous occasion; and for Nancy and Frank just such things did bob up — for on May third a pouring rain and whistling wind put Brandon Hill's spirits way, way low."

"It wasn't so hard," said Wright, "but now I've got a real problem.

"I can't sign my name to the novel. Look: 'Ernest Vincent Wright' has three e's in it."

MUSSOLINI DRILLS NATION FOR ARMY

Lads Begin Training at Six; Women Prepare for Emergency Service; Air Force Strongest Link

By WEBB MILLER

ROME via LONDON, March 24.—(UP)—Mussolini really has a "forest of 8,000,000 bayonets," as he himself expressed it.

My flight to Rome provided a revealing insight into the vast war machine of human flesh and blood and ultra-modern mechanical devices which the dictator of the new "Roman empire" has created.

Mussolini perfected the conception of "a nation in arms" on a scale unprecedented in history. Sparta had the same idea, but it was small-time stuff in volume and numbers, compared to modern Italy.

Percentage Great

Italy today has the largest percentage of militarily-trained men and youths, out of total population, in the world.

Male inhabitants are liable to military service in varying degrees almost from the cradle to the grave. Women are prepared for mobilization in auxiliary home services to carry on the duties of the fighting males.

The program during the Fascist regime, which celebrated its 18th birthday yesterday, has provided Italy with the largest pool of trained man-power in the world, totalling already about 7,000,000 and growing.

It is composed of 453,000 in the active army; 878,000 active reserves, and 5,638,000 inactive reserves. At least 5,000,000 are believed fit for the field at present.

Adding youths of pre-military age between 18 and 21 who have undergone "moral, physical and military training" since childhood preparatory to entering the army, the grand total available is brought to 9,469,000.

Federico Balstrocchi, undersecretary for war, once stated in the chamber of deputies that Italy could mobilize within 24 hours an army of 1,500,000, exclusive of the

DAVEY DETERMINED TO LET LEGISLATURE SOLVE ITS OWN RELIEF TASK

DEFEAT OF TWO BILLS FAILS TO ROUT GOVERNOR

County Power to Tax Beaten by Lopsided Count After House Ballots

AMENDMENT VOTED DOWN

All Relief Funds to be Gone by April 15 is Warning

COLUMBUS, March 24 — (UP) — Despite disruption of the administration' entire relief program by the crushing defeat of the municipal and county tax bills, Gov. Davey today stood firm in his conviction to let the legislature solve "its own problem."

"The situation is serious and I look forward to April 15 with a great deal of apprehension," the governor said. "But the problem of raising new taxes is the responsibility of the general assembly. It is not my job."

Zablotny Bill Loses

The governor's statement came after the house, by a vote of 110 to 14, defeated the Zablotny bill designed to enable counties to bear half the relief load by imposition of a $3 tax on automobiles and a levy of up to 50 per cent of tax imposed by the state on liquor and beer permits.

Prior to the vote, the house rejected an amendment, 47 to 49, which would have substituted the Nichols municipal tax measure for the Zablotny bill.

Although observers had conceded the bill small chance of passage, no one anticipated such a complete rout. It was said to be the most crushing defeat an administration proposal has suffered in years.

Administration leaders had urged its approval and consideration of the measure was delayed several times to line up votes.

Following defeat of the emergency clause, the bill itself and the substitute proposal, the house virtually killed any chances of further consideration by defeating, 83 to 48, a motion designed to reopen the debate.

Even before the debate opened, Rep. S. J. Zablotny, D., Cuyahoga, told the house he "realized the fate of this bill." He pointed out, however, that counties were in no position to raise funds for matching, as provided in the Huml permanent relief bill which passed the house recently, without legislation of this type.

The Huml bill requires counties to match state funds dollar-for-dollar at the expiration of the stop-gap relief bills April 15.

Crazy Quilt System

Hardly a voice was raised in favor of the proposal. Rep. Michael V. Di Salle, D., Lucas, charged the measure would set up a crazy quilt tax system" by establishing 88 tax units.

Rep. William E. Ashbolt, R., Lorain, said there was "but one question involved.

"Are we going to keep faith with the people who sent us here on a promise of no new taxes? I for one will keep faith and vote against the bill," he said.

Rep. P. E. Ward, R., Geauga, said he was "thoroughly in accord with matching" but opposed to the whole principle of the bill.

"I do not believe the legislature can dump its responsibilty by forcing unpopular taxes on communities," he said.

Rep. Lody Huml, D., Cuyahoga, charged the bill was "backed by the special-privileged crowd" and "keeps the tax burden on the backs of the poor."

Following defeat of the bill, Majority Floor Leader Jacob Davis, Pike, in a last desperate stand, urged reconsideration on the grounds many members were confused by the complicated parliamentary procedure followed.

Apparently nothing could stop the landslide, however, and the proposal was rejected.

Out of Money April 15

Informed of the bill's defeat, Gov. Davey said the state would be "completely out of money for relief by April 15.

"If there is no local money available for relief, there will be no money of any kind available,' he said. "And I see no possible chance of getting it."

The governor insisted, however, it was the responsibility of the general assembly to raise taxes, and said he would offer no tax program to the legislature.

He said he would probably send a special message to the senate and house early next week pointing out the seriousness of the situation and stressing the necessity for action to meet the crisis.

"If the legislature will not approve enabling legislation for local taxes, there is only one alternative," he said. "That is resort to the taxing power of the cities to the full. That is considerable, for they have broad powers under the home rule amendment. There are a good many things they could tax."

The governor said he had not changed his position on matching, which he termed "essentially, economicallly and morally right."

Asked if he would approve or disapprove an additional tax on gasoline or liquid fuel if voted by the legislature, the governor replied:

"I haven't decided what my attitude would be."

House leaders, meanwhile, admitted that they did not know "what the next move will be." They termed the situation "very critical" and said one action would have to be taken soon.

To Control Division

Following the debate, the house passed as an emergency, without a vote to spare, the Whetro bill, designed to centralize control of the division of aid for the aged.

It was only the vote of Speaker Frank Uible, who normally does not vote that brought the total to the 92 required for emergency bills. Thirty-three opposed.

The bill, which authorizes the chief of the division to appoint local 5-member boards to administer the pension law, was bitterly opposed by Rep. Jacob F. Myers, R., Allen as a "vicious and detrimental measure, loaded with politics."

Rep. George J. Harter, D., Summit, defended the bill and on a motion by Rep. S. A. Anderson, D., Licking, debate was cut off.

Following the vote, Rep. Myers termed Anderson's motion "an act of discourtesy and an insult to every member of the house who wished to discuss the bill."

Rep. Anderson replied "every member knew what was in the bill" and said he had "no apologies to make."

When the bill was passed, backers of the bill in the gallery broke into vigorous applause.

Minority Floor Leader William M. McCulloch, R., Defiance, turning to the gallery, said:

"There are several thousand applicants for assistance under the pension act who have not been given any aid.

Interests Served

"The nature of the gallery prompts the observation that if these bureaucrats, who have been lobbying for the bill, would give their attention as enthusiastically to their duties as they do trying to perpetuate themselves in office, possibly the interests of the needy aged would be much better served."

It was charged many of the gallery occupants were employes of the division.

Of course most of you remember the Longfellow poem about the village blacksmith standing under the spreading chesnut tree but that does not apply to Sam Dolby, Ashville's village blacksmith. Sam has a comfortable shop to work in and wouldn't want to trade it for the shade of any old chesnut tree but should the coming summer get as hot as last, this Longfellow spreading chesnut tree shade might come in handy. But, now seriously, Sam is as busy as any one would care to be, has lots of work and more coming in every day—plow points and more plow points. Sam says more of the young ones wants to learn to be a blacksmith. It wont be long now that there will be no such animals as a blacksmith.

Good Friday is right here, now, and "in the sign" people are closely watching their almanacs, so's not to "botch things up" and get nothing raised. But Mr. Abbott has been a very successful grower and raises and sells lots of good stuff.

Henry Nothstine, of Mancelona, Mich., is here visiting among relatives and friends. He is one of the very few yet remaining of the Madison Township Brass Band which was in "full bloom" and in the peak of its goodness about fifty-five years ago.

Joseph Outhwate, a Columbus attorney, was the speaker at a Democratic rally and pole raising at St. Paul in 1880, and this was the first public appearance of this band we mention. The 8-foot hole in which the butt end of the hickory pole was to be placed, was not as well guarded as it should have been and into it, head first, went everybody's friend, David Barnhart. He'd be there yet if some of his good friends hadn't taken him by the feet and hauled him out.

OTHER STEPS ADVISED

$182,000,000 on Books, Organization Says

COLUMBUS, March 24—(UP) —Directors of the Ohio Chamber of Commerce today reiterated their opposition to new taxes being imposed by the state.

The chamber said the no new taxes program could be made operative by execution of the following steps:

1. Reduction of the state budget.

2. A state-wide campaign for collection of $182,000,000 now standing on county tax books as delinquent taxes.

3. An energetic and efficient collection of the sales tax.

4. Weeding out of relief clients and providing relief only to the needy.

5. Reduction of costs of old age pensions.

6. Striking out of the appropriation bill "the blank check building program of $5,000,000 for a state building commission which does not exist.

Alexander Thomson, president of the chamber, in briefly commenting on the statement, said:

"Before coming to the state for more money, we suggest that the taxes now due be collected."

SCREEN STAR BOOKED

Tyrone Power, the screens newest star at the box office, heads Rudy Vallee's hour guest list Thursday. Whenever a new personality comes to the top in any branch of show business, radio listeners soon get a chance to hear the star on the Rudy Vallee Hour. Tyrone Power's presence in New York next week gave Rudy the opportunity he has been waiting for during the past few weeks.

Edgar Bergen and his cheerful little partner, Charlie McCarthy, are present again with the latest news of their adventures. Also on the program, to be broadcast over the NBC red network at 8 p. m. is Florence Desmond, English mimic and impersonator. Miss Desmond made her first American radio appearance in the Vallee Hour about three years ago. When she came back to this country Rudy signed her for a return engagement.

Power will be heard in a scene from the play, "The Wind and the Rain" by Merton Hodge.

BURNS AND ALLEN

George Burns and Allen make their dramatic debut in the Radio Theatre on Monday, March 29, in the play "Dulcy." Gracie will play the role that made Lynn Fontanne a star on the stage.

It was Lynn Fontanne who created the title role in this play in the Broadway run some years ago.

The Radio Theatre version, with Cecil B. DeMille as producer, will be broadcast over the Columbia network at 9 p. m. Four members of the original cast will be heard on the air—Howard Lindsay, now a movie director; Elliott Nugent, now a movie writer; his wife, Norma Lee; and Wallis Clark.

RUDY WIEDOFT CUT BY KNIFE IN WIFE'S HAND

HOLLYWOOD, March 24 — (UP)—Rudy Wiedoft, who introduced the saxophone to jazz music and gave Rudy Vallee his nickname, was recovering today from a stab wound in the chest while his wife, Mae, 36, was held in jail on suspicion of the attack.

Wiedoft refused to file charges against his wife but she was booked at the Hollywood police station and led weeping to the women's jail for the night. She is a comely brunette.

Police were told that the couple returned home quarreling after an evening's drinking in a beer parlor. A paring knife was thrust into the left side of his chest and was deflected when it struck a rib.

The saxophone player and teacher denied he slapped his wife. He said she stabbed him. She insisted he fell on the blade accidentally.

He walked from the kitchen to the living room and collapsed on a sofa while his wife continued preparing a meal, not knowing he was hurt. Mary Sheridan, 32, a movie player, who was a guest at the home, found him unconscious and called police.

After treatment at receiving hospital, Wiedoft was taken to a brother's home.

Wiedoft is 44. He has retired from the musical field and has been working on an oil drill invention. He was considered the grandfather of saxophonists and was rated high in both classical and popular musical fields. He was the first saxophonist featured with a symphony orchestra.

SEN. HILL ASKS TEXAS TO VOTE SAFETY ACTION

Law Creating Board to Visit State's Schools, Churches Urged in Amendment

TRANSCRIPT AWAITED

Classes Resume in Buildings Following Disaster

OVERTON, Tex., March 24 —(UP)—Two safety measures were recommended today by Sen. Joe Hill as safeguards against future disaster like the explosion last week at the New London school—the use of malodorous gas in fuel lines and regular inspection of public buildings.

Sen. Hill is chairman of a legislative committee that was sent to investigate the situation at New London.

He suggested that the legislature adopt a building code to attain the best results.

The malodorous gas, known as "skunk gas" in the oil fields, is used commercially in some sections so that leaks may be detected immediately.

An accumulation of natural gas in the basement of the school building, probably from a leak in the heating system, was blamed for the explosion that killed 426 children and teachers.

At Board Sessions

Sen. Hill attended sessions of a military board of inquiry which examined many school officials and survivors of the explosion to determine the cause.

"There is no implication that everyone connected with the New London school did not act in good faith," Sen. Hill said. "The only thing that could have been improved was the venting of the individual heating unit."

The school had no central heating plant. Gas lines ran directly to the 72 radiators.

Sen. Hill favored a law creating some government agency to inspect all schools, churches and other public buildings for safety regulations.

His committee awaited a transcript of the evidence taken by the military board before it reports to the legislature.

Several East Texas schools, which were closed temporarily for inspection after the disaster, were reopened today.

NATIONAL ROAD SYSTEM SOUGHT THROUGH STATE

COLUMBUS, March 24—(UP)—Enactment of a proposal in Congress providing for the construction of a transcontinental "superhighway system" passing through Ohio was urged in a resolution pending before the Ohio senate today.

The resolution, introduced by Senators Abe Laird, D., Tuscarwas and W. F. Garver, D., Holmes, would memorialize Congress to adopt the proposal on the grounds it would give work to millions of jobless, provide safe, economical transportation and result in a valuable national-defense system for the movement of troops and supplies in time of war.

The plan contemplates an east-west superhighway beginning near Boston, passing through points north of New York city and south of Cleveland and terminating at San Francisco.

Three subsidiary north-south highways also would be constructed, one beginning near New York City and extending along the Atlantic Seaboard to Miami; another starting near Cleveland and extending to northern Florida to connect with the Atlantic Coast highway and a third starting near Duluth, Minnesota, stretching south to Laredo, Texas, and connecting there with the Pan-American highway.

The highways would be privately built under government supervision and financed by "superhighway bonds".

DAVEY APPROVES ACT TO PENALIZE STATE COUNTIES

COLUMBUS, March 24—(UP) Governor Davey today had given his approval to two recent legislative enactments.

He yesterday signed the Davis bill, permitting the state to withhold sales tax distributions from counties, beginning in 1938, unless they pay the amounts owed the state for care of wards in state institutions, or arranged to pay such debts in 10 annual installments.

The governor also signed a bill authorizing boards of education to borrow money in anticipation of the distribution of public school fund money.

ASSEMBLY MOVES TO ALTER VOTE ON CHILD LABOR

COLUMBUS, March 24 —(UP)—Two resolutions—one to place the Ohio legislature on record as opposed to the child labor amendment to the U. S. Constitution and another to annul a resolution passed March 22, 1933 by the 90th, general assembly ratifying the amendment—were before the senate today.

They were introduced by Sen. Lawrence A. Kane, R. Hamilton. The first resolution simply would place the legislature on record as opposed to the amendment "in its present form."

VOICE ...of the... PEOPLE

OF EASTER SEALS

As we approach this joyous Easter time with its theme of birth, life and hope, and as we see nature unfolding all of its beauty and color, it is inspiring to know that the International Society for Crippled Children, its affiliated state societies and local chapters have selected this joyous season for the annual sale of crippled children seals.

And it is a genuine pleasure to lend my hand in the campaign for the sale of crippled children throughout the State of Ohio and I am grateful for this opportunity to say these few words in regard to this campaign.

In connection with the activities of the Circleville Rotary Club, I have been interested in the cause of crippled children for many years and I am happy to say that my fellow Rotarians have always manifested a generous interest in every phase of this movement which is aimed at relieving unnecessary suffering and providing opportunities for the handicapped children of Ohio. I can state with authority that whenever a deserving case has been called to the attention of our local Rotary club, the response has been prompt and considerate of every possibility for helping the unfortunate boy or girl who has been deprived of certain opportunities and pleasures which are normal lot of physical abled children.

Many years ago Rotary recognized this field as one of genuine merit. We have tried to promote this work as a service to our community in line with Rotary's belief that the future will take care of itself if we take care of the men and women of tomorrow. In the eyes of Rotary the crippled children are deserving of every consideration as men and women of tomorrow. It is the responsibility of those of us who are able today to provide medical care and vocational training for these crippled children so that tomorrow none of them will be public charges unable either to care for themselves or provide for their own support. There is no particular reason why Rotary should assume this responsibility alone or rather there is no good reason why the support of this unquestionable worth-while undertaking should be limited to the membership of any single organization. Every church member in Ohio should share in this work, every taxpayer in the state should have an interest in this campaign, every educational leader, every teacher, every doctor and lawyer, business man and average citizen. Yes, every man and woman in Ohio should be proud to have a part in this work.

Improving the lot of the unfortunate child will make Ohio a more pleasant and much finer state in which to live and in which to do business. We are all of us stockholders in this state of ours. We are all members of this commonwealth with an interest in the welfare of the state and its parts including both the physical parts such as lands and buildings and also the human parts which includes both the able bodies and the disabled bodies. The able bodies can take care of themselves but the disabled must be helped and the more help we give to the disabled when they are young, the less help we shall have to give them when they are old and helpless.

Therefore, as a matter of pure unselfished interest of dollars and cents it can be argued logically that every one who has a taxable interest in the state of Ohio should be in favor of contributing toward the promotion of this campaign to provide funds for the better care and training necessary for these crippled youngsters who are unable to obtain these necessary things for themselves. There is not much that needs to be said on this subject. The cause needs no description. The fact that there are handicapped children who need help is well known to all of us. The extent of the need has been recognized by our state government for many years and by the Federal Government and the Social Security Act of 1935 which provides for grants of funds to states to help extend and improve their services to the crippled children. In almost all large cities and in many smaller ones and hamlets as well, there are special schools or classes for crippled children. There are clinics for the examination and treatment of such cases and there are special therapeutic swimming pools such as the public swimming pool at Dayton where victims of infantile paralysis are given special treatments and baths under trained supervision. Various facilities are provided in many communities. Federal and state and local agencies are cooperating in the drive to improve the lot and the outlook of the disabled child. Yet there is a kind of service not rendered by any public agency which depends almost entirely upon funds raised by a popular subscription. In Ohio the success of the federal and state programs depend on the measure of cooperation which the Ohio Society for Crippled Children is able to give and the crippled children seal like the Anti-Tuberculosis Seal offers a convenient method whereby the public can participate in this work without leaving the heavy part of the financial burden upon a few particular interested benefactors. Everyone can afford to buy at least a few of these seals and every penny that is spent for a seal is just that much toward buying a happy life and a useful life for some boy or girl who deserves a break.

I urge my friends and their friends to avail themselves of the first opportunity to buy Crippled Children seals and to use them to advertise this most worthy and potentially profitable cause. The cause of every child who is handicapped by physical disability.

I am confident that the sale of seals will be a success and that the Ohio Society for Crippled Children will thereby be able to continue its splendid service to these children and to the State of Ohio; an organization that has done so much for the crippled children. Buy crippled children seals so that these children may be given an opportunity to enjoy the same birthright you and I have enjoyed.

FRED C. CLARK,
Circleville, Ohio.

LEAGUE FAVORS 100-UNIT HOUSE IN AMENDMENT

COLUMBUS, March 24.—(UP) A single legislative chamber of 190 members had been agreed on tentatively today by members of the drafting committee of the new One-House Legislature League, as the basis of the state constitutional amendment it will recommend at a meeting of the league here next Wednesday.

Organization of the league will be completed at that session, with adoption of a constitution, election of officers, formulation of plans to enroll members and sponsorship of a specific one-house legislature amendment to be submitted to the voters.

The drafting committee, named at a preliminary meeting last month to study five proposed amendments that have been introduced in the present legislature, will complete its work next week and report to the general membership on its recommendations.

DEMOCRACIES DAREN'T FIGHT

A STATESMAN referred to in the cable dispatches as "an authoritative Italian spokesman" is quoted as having declared in Rome that the "democracies," which include the United States, Great Britain and France, dare not face a fight with the Fascist States.

Such a pronouncement assumes certain ironical aspects in view of the fact that it comes from Italy, whose reputation as an effective military nation, so far as modern times are concerned, is based entirely upon the boastings of Premier Mussolini, who talks a good fight, and the conquest of Ethiopia, which cannot in any sense be classified as a war.

The last war of any proportions in which Italy participated was the World War and it is a matter of military record that the Italian front was a source of constant anxiety to the Allied high command, which found it expedient to deplete the reserves of French, British, and American troops on the Western Front in order to sustain the constantly flatering Italian line.

Italian statesmen who are discreet and who have an adequate appreciation of the realities of history will keep Caporetto in mind and exercise proper restraint whenever there is a disposition toward boasting.

WELL-FED SOLDIERS

A STATEMENT by officials of the Soviet Government claims for the Russian Army the happy distinction of being the "healthiest in the world." This follows by two or three weeks a somewhat similar claim from Berlin that the ration standards for the German Army are the highest in Europe. Rome has at various times made statements that the Italian soldiers are the peers, physically and intellectually, of any in the world.

All of this indicates that European governments seem to think well of their military organizations, that the fighting forces are sleek and well-fed, that they are highly trained, clothed well and are in all respects made the subjects of solicitous attention.

A phase of the matter which is not discussed, however, is the fact that in order that this condition may prevail the rank and file of citizens are burdened with taxation, compelled to exist on meager food allowances and, in many instances, to endure actual starvation.

There is also a significant silence as to what usually happens eventually to soldiers upon whose development and care millions of dollars have been lavished. These men are being prepared for slaughter, for blindness and for every conceivable cruelty and suffering that can be devised by specialists in the arts of war.

"Why be polite to women?" John Erskine, the writer, asks. Mr. Erskine might try being impolite, just to see what happens.

The London press is still treating cautiously all matters concerning the great romance, but the news is beginning to leak out that it isn't Edward who is to be crowned early in the Summer.

The visiting diplomats have been informed in the language of diplomacy that, so far as the United States is concerned, the next war, if there is to be one, will be on a cash-and-carry basis.

Il Duce says it is an age of dominating personalities, such as, we assume, Benito Mussolini.

Daily Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

DEMOCRATIC UPSET TRADITION

ANDERSON, S. C.—One of the most important political events since the Civil War recently occurred in this State. During the presidential campaign, Democratic state headquarters announced that henceforth it would receive contributions from "anyone."

In the chivalrous language of the South, this meant from Negroes. Heretofore colored people could neither belong nor contribute to the Democratic Party. It was a privilege reserved exclusively for whites.

Next day hundreds of Negroes stood in line waiting to contribute to "their friend," President Roosevelt. No contributions were more than a dollar. Many were between 10 and 25 cents. One aged colored man, standing in line half a day, said:

"Here's my quarter. It's all I made this week, but I wouldn't 'a' made nothin' if it hadn't been fo' him."

A total of 2,000 contributed. Consensus of Negro opinion was that the Republican Party hitherto had used them as tools, and for the first time they had discovered their mistake. Roosevelt had given them relief and WPA jobs on the same terms with the white man, and they were for Roosevelt.

ANCIENT TRADITION

Now get the full significance of this.

This occurred in the first State to secede from the Union, in the State where the first shot of the Civil War was fired. Just a few miles from this historic and now thriving city of Anderson was the home of James L. Orr, who signed the ordinance of secession in 1861.

Here also lived the great statesman and champion of states rights in regard to slavery, John C. Calhoun. Not far away is the grave of General Bernard E. Bee who, watching a Confederate officer during the battle of Bull Run, said: "Look, men, there stands Jackson like a stone wall." Thereafter he was Stonewall Jackson.

DEMOCRATIC SPLIT

It would be a mistake to think that by the opening of the Democratic campaign chest to Negroes, their social or economic status in South Carolina will now be changed. Nor will their political status; they still cannot vote.

But this innovation does represent an extremely important move toward a split now developing within the Democratic Party, not only in South Carolina but in the rest of the South, perhaps throughout the nation. It is the split between the Liberal-Radicals on one hand and the Conservatives on the other. It is the issue between the pro-Supreme Courtists and the Supreme Court reformists. It is the question asked for some time—particularly during these days of Franklin Roosevelt—"Can the Democratic Party stay together?"

In South Carolina, where the roots of old-fashioned Democracy go as deep as or deeper than in any State, the question is worth watching.

World At A Glance

—By— Charles P. Stewart

If the United States and Germany lay side by side, with only an imaginary boundary dividing them, such as is all that divides French soil from Germany's the recently-started vituperative outburst between American and Nazistic sentiment might very well precipitate a war.

As it is, the mutual slanging at long range, contra this country and the Hitleristic realm, is funny rather than serious.

Germany is furious, of course, but cannot vent its feelings in any substantial fashion, and few things are more amusing than impotent rage. To the average Yankee, German anger is a joke, but it is not a joke to the state department, which does not like the dispute. It is powerless, however, as powerless to stop it as Hitler is powerless to bombard Paris or Inland Podunk, where certain things are being said about him.

SEQUENCE OF EVENTS

Consider developments up to date:

Mayor La Guardia of New York speaks more than slightingly of Hitler. Germany protests. If a German mayor spoke slightingly of President Roosevelt, Hitler could discipline him. But it cannot be done here. Therefore the state department is only mildly apologetic. Germany, resenting this mildness, refers to the state department's attitude as "lame". And the German press speaks in the most villainous terms of American womanhood.

I think personally that we should have ignored this scurrility.

However, the state department protests in turn to Berlin.

Hitler, being dominant over Germany's newspapers, was in a position to hush them up, and did so momentarily.

HARSH WORDS—IN U. S.?

Whereupon anti-Hitlerites in New York stage a monster meeting at which many uglier things are said of Hitlerism than Hitleristic journalism ever has said of anything American.

Illustratively:

Gen. Hugh S. Johnson spoke of Hitlerism as "bestial".

President John L. Lewis of the American labor movement, mentioned Nazi-ism as having reduced German labor to "serfdom".

Mayor La Guardia termed Hitlerism not "satisfaktionfachig," which linguists aver is "the worst possible German insult."

Germany again protests.

And the United States again abruptly apologizes.

THREE-CORNERED ROW

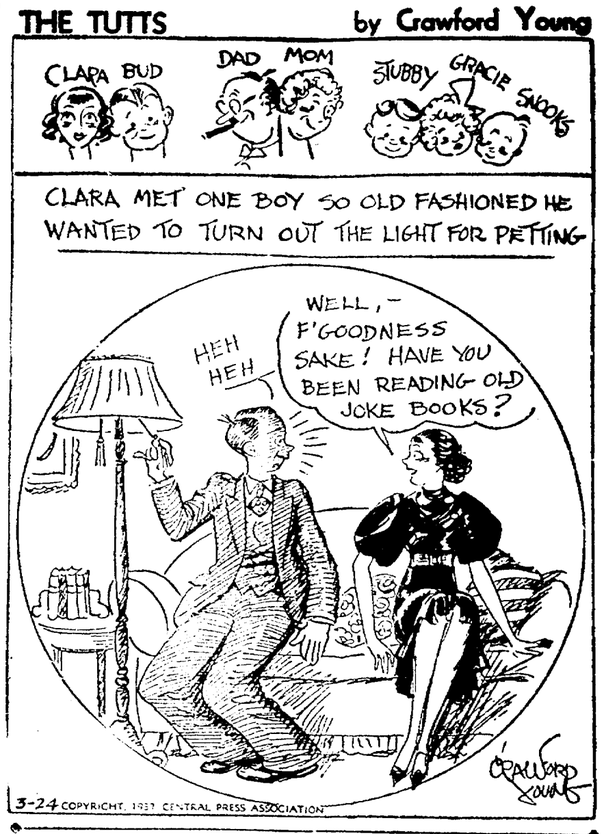

The present row seems to be between democracy and Nazi-ism.

Also, however, it involves rows between democracy and Fascism and Communism.

It is three-cornered one way: Natzlism, Fascism and Communistic.

One-cornered the other way: Democratic.

Here's How to Get Most Out of Spring Baths

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

ALONG about the end of March our grandmothers used to rip their husbands and children out of their winter underwear and have a grand orgy of spring bathing. I am not sure but that staying in the clothes all winter was a good idea.

Dr. Clendening

For some time I have been advising people who have sensitive and itchy skins, especially elderly people, not to bathe so much in the winter. Now that spring is here, however, you can plan for baths a little more frequently, even with my approval.

There are several kinds of baths, and they do much more than achieve mere cleanliness. The ancient Roman and the modern Japanese spent a good deal of time in a steaming hot bath, especially before the evening meal. They made a social event of it, and bathed with their friends and discussed the topics of the day. A bath is a stimulant and circulatory tonic, as well as a tonic to the skin and nervous system.

The morning bath is for a hectic day ahead. We should take the kind of a morning bath that removes every ounce of sluggishness. For this reason, and also because few of us can dally in the morning, the bath should be a quick one, using moderately hot water so that the soap will lather generously. Follow the washing with a fast, cool splash and dry briskly. Your circulation will be speeded up, your body will tingle, and you will be ready to face the day's problems with vigor.

Cold Bath for Strong

A cold bath is all right for the fellow who intends to spend the rest of the day boasting about it. If a cold bath does not produce a glowing sensation of well being, you had better leave it alone.

The pre-dinner bath, which is one of the best of all, should be hot. Not a shower, but tub. Slow lathering and a long soaking period of rest until the body is relaxed, as well as clean—this should be the ritual for the weary. There are very few things that a hot bath won't cure.

This rest bath should be as unhurried as possible, especially if nervous fatigue is to be overcome. If there is time to lie down for a half-hour before dressing for dinner, it will be much more effective.

The bedtime bath should be neither hot nor cold; either extreme is likely to be weakening rather than soothing. The water should be about skin temperature or a little warmer. A tub bath is better than a shower at bed time. Remove the accumulation of grime, oil and perspiration, dead cells and bacteria on your skin, but do not take a strenuous rub-down after such a bath. Blot up the moisture in a leisurely fashion, and so to bed between clean sheets.

Poems That Live

REVEILLE

The morning is cheery, my boys, arouse!
The dew shines bright on the chesnut boughs
And the sleepy mist on the river lies,
Though the east is flushing with crimson dyes.
Awake! awake! awake!
O'er field and wood and brake,
With glories newly born,
Comes on the blushing morn.
Awake! awake!

You have dreamed of your homes and friends all night;
You have basked in your sweet hearts' smiles so bright;
Come, part with them all for a while again,—
Ee lovers in dreams; when awake, be men.
Turn out! turn out! turn out!
You have dreamed full long, I know.
Turn out! turn out! turn out!
The east is all aglow.
Turn out! turn out!

From every valley and hill there come
The clamoring voices of fife and drum;
And out in the fresh, cool morning air
The soldiers are swarming everywhere
Fall in! fall in! fall in!
Every man in his place,
Fall in! fall in! fall in!
Each with a cheerful face,
Fall in! fall in!

Mrs. Smith turned her head to see Jacqueline coming toward her

READ THIS FIRST:

A cable from America excites the interest of the stenographer in the dingy law office of Stuckey & Stuckey, London. Upon his arrival Charles Stuckey learns that Miss Jacqueline Smith, daughter of one of his few respectable clients, now on the continent with her mother, has inherited $1,500,000 from an American uncle. Colonel Alec Lutman, who obviously has some hold over Stuckey, calls and reads the cablegram about the inheritance when Charles leaves the office for a few moments. Lutman proposes that they arrange for Jim Asson, an ex-convict, to marry Jacqueline Smith, having her assign her property—before Stuckey tells her of the inheritance—to her new husband. Lutman would take three-fifths of the inheritance, Stuckey and Asson each one-fifth. Asson arrives and agrees to try and marry Jacqueline and Stuckey, reluctantly, consents to handle the legal end of the scheme.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY:

CHAPTER 6

THE HOTEL WALDERSTEIN was not the best hotel in Cobenzil, and for that reason Mrs. Millicent Ferguson Smith had a grudge against it. If it had been the best hotel, Mrs. Smith, of course, would not have been staying there; and although she tolerated its second-class amenities with a show of patient resignation, she could never shake off a secret feeling of resentment against the place for its failure to be the sort of hotel in which a woman of her taste would choose to reside.

Yet the Walderstein, besides the comparative moderation of its tariff, had much to commend it. It had a pleasant sunny terrace that looked out over the valley of the Danube; it had comfortable chairs on the terrace, and big gaily colored sun umbrellas, exactly like those of the more expensive hotels; and, even had its charges been less moderate and its food more elaborate, the view from the terrace could hardly have been more beautiful than it was under present conditions.

At the moment Mrs. Smith did not seem to be agreeably impressed by the beauty of the view. Seated in a low cane chair beneath one of the umbrellas, she was gazing at the river with a look of disapproval more in keeping with the Thames at Wapping than with the sunlit waters of the Danube at Cobenzil.

Seeing Mrs. Smith sitting there, with the smoke of her Egyptian cigarette scenting the air, one might have been excused for wondering why she should be subjecting the Danube to that disapproving frown. True, she was in her forties—a fact which might make any woman frown not only at the Danube but at the entire unjust and ill-conceived scheme of existence; but "the forties" is a wide and vaguely defined realm in which a woman may wander for far more than a decade without adding to her years, and Mrs. Smith certainly did not look her age. She was still pretty; she had still to discover the first silver thread in her dark hair; and her slim figure was still independent of special diet and fatiguing exercises. Her dress, too—cause of so many feminine frowns—was such as any woman might have worn without frowning even in Cobenzil's best hotel. All these blessings, and Mrs. Smith was none the less frowning. But she was not at the moment counting her blessings; she was mentally counting the contents of her purse.

The manager, of course, had behaved very badly—coming out here on the terrace and flourishing the bill at her and gabbling on in his nasty guttural English. After all, it was quite a small amount. Four weeks for herself and Jacqueline at his wretched little hotel was nothing to make such a fuss about, especially as for the first fortnight she had paid her bill regularly each week.

That was the worst of staying at these second-rate places; they thought only of getting their money, and didn't take the least trouble to keep the bath water hot. Last night she had actually shivered, and the toast this morning hadn't been fit to eat. And in any case there was no excuse for making a scene out here on the terrace, flourishing the bill at her and advertising the matter to the whole hotel. Anyone might have seen—Jim Asson or Colonel Lutman. Experience had taught her that nothing could so effectually wither the roots of a young friendship as a suspected shortage of money, and she did not want either Jim Asson or Colonel Lutman withered. Both of them were coming along nicely, and it would be disastrous if anything should occur now to check them. Time enough to broach money matters when their friendship was more firmly rooted and likely to survive the shock.

But the financial situation had to be faced. The manager had delivered an ultimatum: either she must pay her bill within a week or she must leave his hotel. He had a wife and a family to support, he had said—as if she were in some way responsible for his indiscretions! But the ultimatum was a nuisance. It had been delivered at a most awkward moment. Mentally counting her assets, Mrs. Smith realized that the settlement of the bill within the stipulated time limit was in the highest degree improbable; which would mean that, unless the manager could be brought to a more reasonable frame of mind, she must leave the hotel. And she did not wish to leave, because that would mean leaving Jim Asson and Colonel Lutman and abandoning all her schemes and hopes. Jim Asson and Colonel Lutman were chances far too good to be left lying about a continental hotel for someone else to pick up and make use of.

Still, there was a week before the ultimatum would expire, and a great deal could happen in a week. She must see if she could speed things up a little. If only Jacqueline were more tractable. . . .

She lighted another cigarette, caught the sound of footsteps on the terrace, and turned her head to see Jacqueline coming toward her. She noticed that the girl was frowning, and instantly dismissed her own frown and greeted her with a smile.

The outward appearance of Jacqueline Smith always brought a smile to her mother's lips. Jacqueline in that respect was so completely satisfactory, with her dark hair, her gray eyes, her clear-cut features and her slim, boyish figure.

Jacqueline helped herself to a cigarette and lighted it.

"Well, mother? Do we start packing?"

Millicent Smith glanced at her quickly. She had tried very hard to cure herself of the habit of giving her head a sudden turn when Jacqueline made one of her unexpected remarks, but she had never managed to do it. Some of the girl's remarks were so very disconcerting.

She raised her eyebrows in mild surprise.

"Packing, my dear?"

Jacqueline nodded.

"I suppose we're moving on, aren't we?"

"Moving on? I hadn't thought of it, Jacqueline. We're fairly comfortable here, and there are some quite nice people staying in the hotel, and even if the bath water isn't very hot . . ."

"When a hotel manager starts waving a bill we usually do move on, don't we?"

Again Mrs. Smith raised her shapely eyebrows.

"I don't think I quite understand, Jacqueline."

"What you mean, mother, is that you hoped I didn't understand. But I saw the whole thing from the window of my bedroom, and it didn't need much understanding. Where are we going next?"

"We're going nowhere; we're staying here."

"But if you can't pay the bill. . . ."

"I haven't said I can't pay the bill. Just because I don't choose to pay this afternoon—on the hotel terrace, in full view of everybody—it doesn't follow. . . ."

Jacqueline cut her short with a gesture of impatience.

"Why go on pretending, mother? I'm not a perfect fool, and it doesn't deceive me. Do you really suppose I don't know why we left Marienbad, and Prague, and—oh, half a dozen other places? We left because the hotel would give us no more credit, because it was a case of paying up or being kicked out. And because we couldn't pay up, we sneaked off . . ."

"I have never sneaked off in my life, Jacqueline. I have never left a hotel except by the main door."

"We left Prague at six in the morning, anyway, so that we could slip away without giving any tips."

FACTS AND FANCIES

To Wash Blankets

Handle woolen blankets carefully so as not to break the fibers in them. Sudden changes in the temperature of the water in which they are being washed will cause them to shrink. It is best to wash and rinse them in waters of the same temperature.

Measuring Shortening

To measure a half cup of shortening, fill the cup half full of water, then drop in the shortening until the cup is full. Drain off the water, and one-half cup of shortening remains.

AT THE CLIFTONA

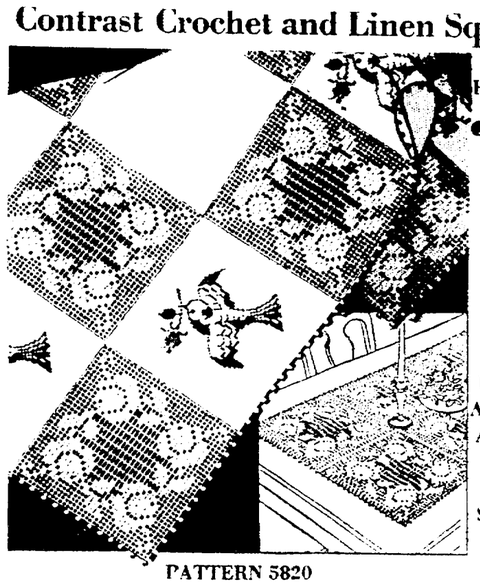

There's not much seriousness in "They Wanted to Marry," RKO Radio's new feature comedy, which opens Wednesday at the Cliftona Theatre, but there's plenty of hilarious entertainment in this story of a newspaper cameraman's hectic romance.

With Gordon Jones, the new screen "find" and Betty Furness in the leading roles the picture deals with the efforts of two modern youngsters to attain the matrimonial state despite unforseen obstacles. They startout looking for a minister on several occasions, but each time the Fates are against them and they wind up in jail.

Contrast Crochet and Linen Squares

Household Arts by Alice Brooks

Make Effective Articles of Alternate Crochet and Stitchery Squares

PATTERN 5820

Crocheted squares — cross-stitched bluebirds — each lovely alone, when combined make linens you can be proud of. Alternate the bluebirds with crocheted squares on a cloth as shown. Together the squares can form a panel for a large center in a bedspread—they can make a lovely scarf or pillow. And if you want just the filet crochet squares you may make a lacy cloth that way. Use the bluebirds alone too on varied linens; there are some smaller motifs to go with them. The crosses are 8-to-the-inch. In pattern 5820 you will find a transfer pattern of eight motifs 6½ x 6½ inches and four motifs 2¼ x 3 inches; charts and directions for making the filet crochet square; material requirements; illustrations of all stitches used; color suggestions.

When these patterns are ordered through The Herald they are subject to one cent sales tax. When ordered direct from the distributor no sales tax is collected.

NEW YORK AND BROOKLYN FEEL SPIKES' STEEL

Dressen, Grimes Nearly at Blows as Runners Hit Hard, Often

CROSETTI PUT OUT, TOO

Spud Davis, Formerly With St. Louis, is Heard

TAMPA, Fla., March 24—(UP)—The Cincinnati Reds are the talk of the Grapefruit league with their rough and ready, cut and slash tactics in exhibition games. They're out after the "Gas House Gang" title held by the St. Louis Cardinals, and they aren't kidding.

Manager Charlie Dressen has the Reds running bases like a gang of wild men. In three days they cut down three men at second base in plays that looked like the world series rather than a practice game.

Jimmy Outlaw, Nashville rookie hustling to win the Reds' third base job from Lew Riggs, crashed into Frankie Crosetti, New York Yankees' shortstop, at second last Friday. Outlaw's spikes cut a deep gash in Crosetti's right ankle, putting him on the shelf for several days.

On Sunday the Reds wrecked Brooklyn's second base combination in two innings.

Burleigh Grimes, Brooklyn's hard-boiled manager, and the diminutive Dressen almost came to blows.

Grimes blew up, and started straight for Dressen.

"You'd better watch out after starting that kind of stuff," yelled Grimes.

"We can take it," answered Dressen.

"Yeh, you always could take it," Grimes said, "and hit .280."

"You don't win with your mouth up here, Grimes. You've got a job. Let's see you hold on to it."

"Well, I'll hold on to it and I don't need a couple of giants as a bodyguard to protect me."

(Grimes referred to the Reds' coaches, George Kelly and Tom Sheehan, who are both 6 feet 6 inches in height.)

The warring spread to the players of both clubs, and Heinie Manush and Johnny Hudson, Brooklyn base runners, charged into Kampouris in plays at second base. Then Whitey Moore, Reds' rookie pitcher, made Buddy Hassett, Dodgers' first baseman, dive into the dirt with a pitch at his head. Later Moore hit Johnny Cooney with a pitch, but it appeared to be accidental.

Spud Davis, Cincinnati catcher who spent three years with the Cards, says the Reds "haven't a Pepper Martin, but the whole bunch has more spirit than the Cardinal teams I played on the last three years."

Entry Blanks Prepared For Spring Field Trials

Entry blanks are being distributed by members of the Pickaway County Bird Dog club for the spring field trials to be held April 10 and 11 at Yellowbud.

Approximately 2,500 acres of land will be used for the trials. Five courses have been arranged. Judges will be Ollie Neymeir, Prospect, Ohio, who is well known in Pickaway county as a field trial judge, and Ralph Chamberlin, Akron, O.

Members of the club expect the trials to draw trainers from many states. They anticipate the largest entry list in the history of the local organization. Headquarters will be in the New American hotel.

Drawings April 9

Drawings in the open stakes will be held April 9 at 8 p. m., and in the amateur stakes on April 10 at the same hour. Entry lists will be closed on the nights of the drawings. Trials are scheduled to start at 7:30 a. m.

Entry fees for the open stakes are: all age, $15; derby, $10, and puppy, $10. Trophies will be given winner of first place in each open stake and prizes will be a 70 percent split of the fees. 50, 30 and 20 percent. Entry fees for the amateur stakes will be: all age, $10; derby and puppy, $5. Fifty percent of the fees will be split for these events. The stakes will be run in the order named.

Officials of the club are Byron Eby, president; R. M. Leach, vice president; B. S. Millar, secretary, and Ralph Wallace, treasurer.

Further arrangements for the trials will be discussed Saturday at 8 p. m., when members of the club meet in the Leach Motor Car Co.

FRANKIE FRISCH WORRIED ABOUT CARDS' HITTING

DAYTONA BEACH, March 24—(UP)—Frankie Frisch was still worried about the weak hitting of his St. Louis Cardinals today as they met the Washington Senators.

In defeating their Rochester farm club yesterday 4 to 0, the Card batsmen collected only a half dozen hits—two less than their minor league opponents.

President Branch Rickey announced he was ready to announce shipping of several recruits to farms.

PRICE OF DUCAT FOR FIGHT MAY HALT TITLE GO

CHICAGO, March 24—(UP)—Promoter Joe Foley offered today to parade Heavyweight Champion Jimmy Braddock at the corner of State and Madison streets for the benefit of process services but legislation placing $10 top on tickets for the Braddock-Joe Louis fight appeared to have him stymied.

"If that bill becomes a state law, the fight's off," Foley declared.

The state senate at Springfield passed it in a huff, 36 to 0, after hearing charges that legislators sought to shakedown the promoter for free tickets.

Even with admissions scaled from $2.20 to $27.50, Foley indicated he needed every dollar to pay off Braddock's $500,000 guarantee and make the promotion a successful venture.

Braddock, meanwhile, was reported en route to Chicako after ducking out on Miami courts seeking to restrain him from junking his Madison Square Garden contract calling for a fight with Max Schmeling.

HELFRICH CALLS BASEBALL TEAM FOR FRIDAY AT 8

ART WALKER SOUGHT

Good First Sacker Needed for Old Hollanders

The New Holland baseball team, backed by Mike Helfrich and managed by Dudley Briggs, will meet Friday evening to organize in preparation for an intensive campaign through the summer.

Briggs, hardhitting outfielder, was appointed recently by Helfrich to manage the club.

Included on the Helfrich roster this year will be Art Walker, Fox Postoffice clouter, who will play third base. Pollock, Washington C. H. star, will move over to shortstop from the hot corner to replace slugging but erratic Wallace Noon.

Gene Briggs at Second

Gene Briggs, New Holland athlete, will be stationed as second base.

Briggs is seeking a lefthand first sacker.

Williams, also of Washington C. H., will be behind the plate.

The mound staff according to Briggs' plans, will include Shadel Saunders, former New Holland coach, and Lefty Lathey, of Lancaster.

The outfield is expected to include Maxie Lawrence, Washington C. H. youngster, who played his first year of independent ball last summer; Ed Crist, Lancaster, who can also play first base, and the team manager.

The team, which will play under the name Old Hollanders, will be outfitted with new uniforms.

(Briggs asks that Art Walker attend the meeting Friday evening at 8.)

FRANCIS LEARNS NEW STATE LAW FOR FISHERMEN

Clarence Francis, county conservation officer, was furnished the following information Tuesday on the new fishing license law by the Division of Conservation:

"License is required for all persons over the age of eighteen years fishing in Ohio with hook and line. This includes rod and reel, hook and line, line in hand and trot lines. Fee for residents is 50 cents plus 10 cents clerk's fee. For non-residents the annual license is $3 plus 25 cents for clerk's fee. A ten-day license for non-residents is $1 plus 10 cents clerk's fee. The law is effective May 29.

"Anyone fishing with rod and reel up to May 29 must have a rod and reel license. All rod and reel licenses purchased prior to May 29 will be honored for the remainder of the year. An additional 50-cent license will not be required. There will be no refund on rod and reel licenses purchased prior to May 29. New licenses will be available about May 10."

About This And That In Many Sports

Coaches Hit Action

Coaches of Pickaway county schools are nearly unanimous in the belief that the no-center rule for high school cage teams will be a detriment rather than an improvement over the style of game now played---Most of them believe the health of every youth on the floor will be endangered

One Mentor Quoted

One coach, talking of the announcement by H. R. Townsend, state commissioner of athletics, that the no-center jump rule would be used next winter, said: "The tipoff has always been a feature of a basketball game the same as a kickoff in football. To remove it eliminates much of the thrill of a contest. If Townsend goes through with his plan, I am fearful of the result. High school basketball needs no speeding up. It is plenty fast as it is and any effort to make it speedier will only work with reverse English

New Rules Needed

Every coach contacted said that the number of timeouts allowed the teams would have to be increased---Each believed other new rules, especially one for putting the ball in play after a score, would have to be enacted

Grissom Looks Good

Lefty Lee Grissom is looming as one of the most potential pitchers on the Cincinnati Redleg team---Grissom, up from the minors, held the Yankees with one hit in three innings and the Dodgers with three in five frames---St. Louis Cards sent Al Cuccinello, former Columbus infielder, to Rochester---The Columbus team is hopeful of making things interesting in the association this year, but much, much help must be received before it is going anywhere

Mr. Braddock's Move

Jimmy Braddock's on the way to Chicago; Max Schmeling has taken off for American shores, and Schmeling's big guarantee to meet Braddock in Berlin has been withdrawn for various reasons---So-o-o-o maybe Mr. Braddock will meet Mr. Louis in Chicago and maybe he will not---Madison Square Garden is going to say a lot about that

GRIMES MAY BUY RECEIVER FROM WASHINGTON '9'

CLEARWATER, Fla., March 24 (UP)—Manager Burleigh Grimes of the Brooklyn Dodgers announced today he had decided not to buy Bill Baker, young Yankee catcher. He admitted, however, he was still interested in Cliff Bolton, recently put on the market by the Senators. The Dodgers are seeking revenge today against the Yanks who bested them, 9-6, in yesterday's exhibition.

MATCH POINT ECCENTRICITIES

ONLY SEASONED duplicate players realize how a single hand may shift leading scores, and how carefully the traveling score sheets must be scanned to judge what to do on certain doubtful hands. The hand given appeared in a 12-pair sweepstakes, Howell movement. My partner was J. M. Rothschild. The first half of the hands appeared to give us a commanding lead. The next few hands showed that four pairs were running neck-and-neck. The next two hands showed that we probably would land third money, by just taking average scores, but to win first we had to take chances on the first promising hand appearing. We decided to take an even chance for top, and did so on the hand shown below. I sat South.

All other leading pairs played either 2-Spades or 3-Spades and made three. We took our chance and bid 4-Spades. We deliberately took even chances to win a prize 2½ times what we probably would win if we took average score on the deal.

The opening lead was the 4 of diamonds. East's K fell to my Ace. I took two club tricks in dummy. On the second one I let go one diamond. If the four adversely held trumps were evenly divided I was certain of game, by having dummy ruff one heart, so that defenders would win only one trick in trumps, one in hearts and one in diamonds.

Dummy's 10 of hearts was led. East's J was allowed to hold the trick. I ruffed a return lead of diamonds; after giving east one trick in that suit. At the seventh trick my J of spades was led, and lost to East's Q. His K of hearts was taken with my Ace. Dummy ruffed my last heart. Opponents had won the three tricks which I could spare and still go game. I led the Ace of spades. East dropped the 4 and West showed out, killing game chances. We went down one trick.

Match point scores for the evening, counting only the four leading pairs, were: A. 66; B, 64; C, 62½; D (our pair) 61½, because we made zero on the hand, and A made 5 points for top.

Had we not taken a chance on the hand, the pairs would have rated as follows: B, 64½; D, 64; A, 63½; C, 63. We would have been second. Had we not thought we would be third we would not have gambled for top score.

Had we made our bid, scores would have been: D, 66½; B, 64; A, 63; C, 62½. Evenly matched teams obtain surprisingly close scores in many cases.

Arizona Indians Observe Easter With Passion Play 400 Years Old

Actors in the Yaqui Indians' fantastic Passion Play

TUCSON, Ariz. March 24 — Dancing and chanting to the barbaric rhythm of their forefathers, masked Yaqui Indians on the hot deserts of Arizona and Sonora, Mexico, are weaving through the most fantastic Passion Play in the world.

This Easter marks the 400th anniversary for the tribesmen of a Calvary spectacle that is older by almost a century than that of Oberammergau, Germany.

Ever since the first Spanish padres trekked through northern Mexico, four centuries ago, and told the warring Yaquis about the crucifixion, the Indians have been acting out the Jerusalem story amid a colorful conglomeration of primitive rites.

Daily Episodes

While bronzed youths pound the tom-toms and women wail hour after hour, the Passion Play is acted out in episodes that are given from day to day during the season of Lent, climaxing in a weird marathon dance that goes on for days and nights until Easter morning breaks.

Judas wears a mask that looks like a papiermache head from the Riviera carnival. Peter is grim and in tattered overall trousers. The Roman soldiers carry mesquite swords that have been crudely carved. Even the Cristo goes to Calvary in modern shirt and trousers. The Yaqui cares little for historical accuracy in dress.

And old Judea most certainly never saw the half-naked dancers, covered with herb paints and wearing deer heads, who shriek and howl as they accompany the Cristo to the cross.

Christ's betrayal in Gethsemane is re-enacted in a little plot of virgin desert, the thorny cactus plants being embellished with green branches from the cottonwood trees. The Yaqui Cristo bears a heavy mesquitt cross along the Via Crucis, the Way of the Cross, but unlike most Passion players in the same role, he prefers to substitute a figurine when Calvary is reached, and so he does not hang from the cross.

Ancient Battles

The Pascoleros, the dancers of right, and the Matachinas, the dancers of wickedness, fight with their swords as the procession moves along. Long before the Spaniards ever came through their country, these dancers were battling each other in pagan spectacles.

As soon as the figurine is placed in a desert tomb on Holy Friday, the Pascoleras begin their famous Dance of the Resurrection, which lasts continuously until Easter dawn.

Saturday is a day of hilarity. An effigy of Judas is placed on a burro and paraded in derision before the crowds. Angry mobs finally descend on it, touch off firecrackers and gunpowder concealed in the stuffing, and blow Judas to bits. The Yaquis decided long ago that such a chapter should be added to the Biblical chronicle.

Jealously between the Yaqui villages flares high as each tribe tries to outdo the other in the elegance of the Easter play. Returns for many back-breaking weeks of cotton picking or hoeing in the desert sun are spent for dime store trinkets with which to brighten the crude Indian shrine. Jackrabbit roundups are held to provide food for the dancers, and groups of plump brown women squat about the little plaza, slapping unleavened dought into tortillas, or pancake-size bread.

Trained for Years

Competition is keen also among the actors, who are trained from their 'teens for the roles they play. The honor of portraying the Cristo is as eagerly sought after as the nomination for mayor in any American city, and not infrequently causes a serious split in the local "political" ranks.

The Indians never charge for their Passion Play—and they don't encourage attendance of their white brethren by providing them seats. As at a golf tournament, the spectators follow the actors about the village and Yaqui police tap with sticks any Caucasians who poke their noses too far into the pageant.

training at the age of six, when he forces at that time engaged in conquering Ethiopia.

It is a greater number than any nation except Russia could mobilize so rapidly.

is incorporated into the uniformed "Wolf Clubs," similar to the Boy Scouts, to be taught marching, discipline and the Fascist Doctrine.

At eight he enters the Balilla, or junior blackshirts, where he learns drilling, shooting and other phases of militarization. He remains in the Balilla until he is 18. Then his training is broadened and intensified until he is 21, whereupon he enters the active army for a normal period of 18 months.

After his release, he continues periodic post-military training until the age of 55, after which he remains a member of the civilian mobilization scheme.

Since the ancient Greeks, no state has devoted such attention to physical and military training of its population. Direct military expenditure — or that portion revealed by the budget, averages about one-fourth of the total budget.

The budget for 1936-1937 totalled $932,325,500, of which $220,560,000 was for military purposes. It is estimated that next year's total will be $1,089,015,000 of which $232,725,000 will be military.

Air Force Modern

Aside from massed, trained manhood, the most important material factor in Italy's military strength is her air force, which undoubtedly ranks among the largest, strongest and most modern in Europe.

Although exact figures are kept a strict secret, foreign observers estimates first line planes at more than 2,000, which indicated a total number of 6,000 or 7,000, including reserves.

The chief characteristic of the air force lies in the large proportion of planes manufactured within the last two or three years, which results in an unusually up-to-date force, compared to some other European nations.

A high ratio of the force is composed of bombers with a speed of around 220 miles an hour. Italy is now developing a new, huge Fiat BR-20 type bomber with an 80-foot wing span. It has a speed of 275 miles an hour and a radius of 1,900 miles. It carries 3-½ tons of bombs and is defended by six machine guns. It is reputed to be the fastest and most powerful bomber in Europe, equipped with two 1,000 horsepower motors and capable of reaching 21,000 feet within 21 minutes.

Without a load, a height of 31,000 feet is claimed for the plane.

Training Too Slow

Italy's program avowedly is the production of 1,500 airplanes annually, of which her factories are capable, but the training of pilots and ground crews retards the schedule.

The general efficiency of motors and planes is demonstrated by Italy's numerous world speed records and by such flights as Marshal Italo Balbo's to Italy and to Chicago, the latter with 24 planes in formation.

Italy has 25 schools training 1,500 pilots and 4,500 mechanics. Fourteen air fields under construction bring the total to 130, plus 25 seaplanes bases.

Factories working 24 hours a day concentrated principally on high-speed fighting planes and high-speed bombers.

Italy is better able than most nations to concentrate her air forces wherever they are most needed because of her closeness to Libya, her north African colony, and to the Dodecanese islands off the coast of Asia minor.

Her greatest military disadvantage is the lack of primary raw materials necessary in war time. Italy produces only two percent of petroleum requirements, 3.2 per cent of coal and 37 per cent of iron and steel. To offset it, she has piled up a year and a half's reserve of coal and half a year of gasoline.

Mussolini is rapidly electrifying the railroads to lessen the coal requirements. Now one-fifth of the railroads are electrified, using the immense water-power resources of the Alps.

By extraordinary efforts, Mussolini has succeeded in making Italy nearly self-sufficient in wheat, the mainstay food during normal years. However, the basic materials for munitions must be imported, including nitrate, copper and cellulose.

Home Economics

Green shamrock place cards and top hats were used to give Irish atmosphere to the party planned and presented to the Sophomore Home Economics class on Wednesday, March 17, 1937 by a group of four girls, Dorothy Smith, Lucille Norris, Dorothy Barr and Ethel Weaver. The students are studying menus for special occasions and have worked out their plans using the special holidays of the year as their outline. Each student selected one holiday in which she was interested and prepared a report for the class concerning the significance of that day. Appropriate menus and special color schemes as well as entertainment pertaining to the occasion were discussed. Other projects concerning Easter, personal birthdays and weddings will be presented and each will be worked out by a group of four girls.

Agriculture

The Young Mens Farming Club held its annual meeting at the school house Tuesday evening. There was an election of officers and they are the following: President Ben Nothstine; Vice President Joe Peters; Secretary Harold Hoffman; Treasurer Charles Martin; Reporter Herman Truex; Sergeant of Arms George Sark. The meetings will be the third Monday of each month. This meeting was the last of a series of fifteen class sessions. The subject of the course discussed was generally known as "Farm Management Program". The specific problems analyzed were "Farm Commodity Prices" and the principals of breeding livestock and plants. This course is brought about by the young men of this community who have the interest to promote this course. They prefer to use purebred sires and hybrid seeds. They also plan to have the commodities of production ready for market at the season when prices are most favorable. Then boys are going to follow some of these improved practices on their own farm.

Senior English

The Seniors have been studying grammar. The two figures of speech being studied are the simile and the metaphor. Some very interesting themes were written which contained some similes and metaphors. One of the most interesting topics was "Starting a Model T."

Government

We are now studying the Judicial department. The class shows much interest in this subject.
